HE HYPNOTIZED SANDOW.

Dr. Mercerau Makes the Strong Man Do His Bidding.

New York, Feb. 23.—At the College of Physicians and Surgeons, in the presence of several members of the faculty and twenty-five students, Sandow, the strong man, was hypnotized today by Dr. C. H. Mercerau, a pale faced, slender man, who weighs scarcely 140 pounds.

Sandow came into the room and threw himself upon a couch. One of the gas jets was lighted and Sandow was told to fix his eyes upon it. The doctor explained that this was merely to hold his attention and help him concentrate his mind upon the idea that he was going to sleep. The physician sat on the couch, facing Sandow.

"Keep your eyes on the light," he said, "and think only of going to sleep."

Sandow obeyed and the doctor went on to talk about hypnotism for a minute or two. Then he turned to his subject.

"Draw deep breaths, deep breaths, deep breaths," he said. "That's it; deep breaths. Your eyelids are beginning to flutter. You are going to sleep. Don't resist me. Breathe deeper; so. Now—you are asleep."

It was true, although it did not seem possible. It had taken less than thirty seconds after the doctor had turned to him the second time to make Sandow sleep. The doctor arose and said that the subject was in the third degree of the cataleptic state, which was shown by the fact that his limbs would remain in any position in which they were placed. Sandow's arms were raised in the air and they remained there until they were pushed down.

As the man sank deeper into sleep he was told to wave his hands about, making them move faster or slower at the will of his master. The doctor then made the strong man go through a number of amusing antics.

He was told that a three-pound dumbbell was so heavy that he could not lift it. He tugged and struggled and strained every muscle in his body in a vain effort to lift. The doctor said his purpose was to show the falsity of the belief that only weak-nerved, hysterical persons were subject to hypnotism. Sandow was bright and cheerful after the doctor awakened him.

Mrs. Mary C. Bailey, wife of Rev. A. M. Bailey, a retired preacher, died in San Jose Saturday. Mrs. Bailey for over forty years has been a resident of Santa Clara Valley.

A big crowd of people of all parties went to Reno last night, just for the "fun of the thing," as some of them expressed it.

A Vile Crime.

Ellijay, Ga., February 24.—As Grayson Brown and his bride of a week were traveling a lonely mountain road in Towns county two men stopped them and, with revolvers, compelled the bridegroom to stand by while they forced his bride to submit to them. They left threatening death if they were informed on.

Next day Agnew Burrows and John Thompson were arrested, but while they were being taken across a creek they leaped into the stream and escaped by swimming. Mrs. Brown was one of the prettiest girls of the section, and when the crime became known the people of the county organized for lynching. They are still scouring the mountains for the men.
